Negotiating spaces: Equitable Participation & Progression of British African Caribbean Males in Academia

EdD Education and Social Justice
School of Law and Social Sciences

Introduction (Platform 1)
British African Caribbean males (BACMs) continue to face challenges in relation to equitable participation and progression in workplaces in conjunction with other ethnic groups.

Literature Review (Rolling stock)
British. This research primarily addresses BACMs' experiences in HE through the exploration of their accounts.

Theoretical Framework
The intersectionality Framework of Crenshaw (1991) & The Silences Framework of Serrant-Green 2011 will be used to underscore the lived experiences and interconnected social categories of race, Gender and Ethnicity of BACMs in HE.

Research Questions
(W) What are the career experiences of BACMs in HE? Does the combination of being BACM and male affect their experiences in HE? What factors hinder or help the career progression and promotion?

Research Objectives
1) To focus visibility on the experiences of BACMs which are significantly under-represented in the within HE.
2) To explore the barriers restricting the participation and progression of BACMs.
3) To identify strategies utilised by BACMs to overcome barriers and negotiate spaces in academia.

Thesis Central: (07/22) Original Contribution to Knowledge
This research contributes to the understanding how BACMs negotiate trajectories within HE. Exploring their employment trajectory experiences could assist in identification of pathways to progression with HE.

Ethical Issues (Buffer stop)
Sensitivity to the subtleties with which participants use cultural values and norms to give meaning to their experience as well as avoiding creation/perpetuation of damaging stereotypes.

Methodology (Signal box)
A narrative approach utilising semi-structured interviews with a purposive sample of 15 BACMs. NVIVO will be used to undertake data analysis using the Silences framework.
